The electrical division presented a float rigged with a pole at either end with boys near the top, dressed with climbers and safety belt, carrying pilers, fastening wires to the regulation cross arms. A steam engine, an electrical dynamo and switch board were in full operation; a great number of electric lamps were burning as the float passed. The machine division float was remarkable in that all the machinery on it was built by students. There were in operation a drill press, one 7-horsepower engine driving the machinery, and machine vises. Boys were handling all the machinery, performing their tasks in realistic fashion. The decorations included blue-prints showing the course of study as used in industrial classes. A steam boiler, mounted on a large wagon, with hose connections with the machine float followed, furnishing the power for the operation of the engine.

The Printing Float.

On the printing float five boys were . setting type, imposing operating a printing press and a stapling machine, also binding books. The float was trimmed with specimens of the work done by the The wheels were decorated with scrap paper.

The brickmasonry and plastering float carried six boys doing progressive work, building piers, turning arches, lowing the three steps in plastering. Two finished arches were exhibited. a period of more than a year, the United States has practically relinquished sovereignty over Calapatch Island, a tiny piece of land off the southern coast of Cuba, and the Cuban government in turn has just recognized the title of Herbert J. Browne, of Washington, as owner of the island.

Official notification to this effect was carried to the State Department on Saturday by Minister Quesada.

In recognizing Mr. Browne's title the the chickens, geese and ducks make up a total of 809 fowls.

After the parade had passed and the students and teachers and the crowd were repairing to the chapel, the Presidential party was driven hurriedly about the grounds, so as to afford some idea as to the extent and scope of same; then to the chapel, where the students sang a number of plantation melodies. The singing was led by the institute choir of 150 voices and heartily joined in by the whole student and teaching body.

The President is a great lover of the old-time plantation melodies and Tuskegee Institute has made a great feature of preserving these old-time folk-songs.

"In presenting our guest to the stu-dents, teachers, and citizens, I must not omit to express the gratitude felt by the people of the Tuskegee Institute, and by the people of both races in this section of Alabama, for the honor which has been conferred upon them.

"That the Chief Magistrate of our beloved Republic of 80,000,000 people deemed it good and wise to include Tuskegee Institute in his trip through the South, and spend a few hours in seeing the work we are doing here, brings to the heart of every man and woman of our race in this country a degree of encouragement and inspiration which it is impossible for any American citizen, not of our race, fully to appreciate.

"My friends, without further words of mine, I have the pleasure and the honor of presenting to you the President of the United States, the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt." been conferred upon them.

In his address the President urged race co-operation as boding well for the fuwithin the last twenty years the industrial operations of the South have increased so tremendously that there is a scarcity of labor almost everywhere; so that it is the part of wisdom for all who wish the prosperity of the South to help the negro to become in the highest degree useful to himself, and therefore to the community in which he lives.

A series of arches, decorated with agricultural products raised by the school, studded the way beginning at the main entrance of the grounds to the chapel, and under these arches the President and parade passed. From the reviewing stand the President was able to see, 500 yards away, the chapel where he afterward spoke and the extensive sloping lawn in front of the building into which the floricultural students had planted a bed of Coleus plants shaped to form a huge anchor, and above it the name "Roosevelt" in different shades of the same plant.

From Montgomery, Mobile, and Opelika, in Alabama; Columbus, Newnan, and all nearby, hundreds of white and colored citizens came to see the parade and hear the President's address; after the visit to the town of Tuskegee most of those who had gathered there followed the President was greeted most enthusiastically.

South in arousing public opinion against lawlessness in all its forms, and especially against lynching.

I wery earnestly hope that their example will count in the North as well as in the South, for there are just as great evils to be warred against in one region of our country as in another, though they are not in all places the same evils. And when any body of me in any community stands bravely for what is right, these men not merely serve a useful purpose in doing the particular task to which they set them selves, but give a lift to the cause of good citizens and I am sure you will not grudge my saying that it could not possibly have been done save for the loyal support you have received from the white people round about; for during the twenty-five years of effort to educate the black man here in the midst of a white community of intelligence and the races, or any difficulty of any kind.

In favor of law and order and to war against all crime by men of your own race; for the heaviest wrong done by the for the heaviest wrong done by the continual is the wrong to his own race. You must teach the people of your race that they must scrupulously observe any contract into which they in good faith enter, no matter whether it is hard to keep or not. If you save money, secure homes, become tax-payers, and lead clean, decent, modest lives, you will win the respect of your neighbors of both races. Let each man strive to excel his fellows only by rendering substantial service to the community in which he lives.

The colored people have many difficulties will be surmounted if only the policy of reason and common sense is pursued. You have made real and great progress. According to the census the colored people of this country own and pay taxes upon something like $300,000,000 worth of property, and have blotted out over 50 per cent of their illiteracy.

Looking to Future.

Looking to Future.

What you have done in the past is an accomplish in the future under wise leadership. Moral and industrial education is what is most needed, in order that this progress may continue.

The race cannot expect to get everyhing at once. It must learn to wait and bide its time; to prove itself worthy by showing its possession of perseverance, of thrift, of self-control. The destiny of the race is chiefly in its own hands, and must be worked out patiently and persistently along these lines. Remember also that the white man who can be of most use to the colored man is that colored man's neighbor.

For Southerners to Solve.

It is the Southern people themselves that exist in the South: of course, what help the people of the rest of the Union can give them, must and will be gladly vancement for the colered man in the South lies in his steady common-sense effort to improve his moral and material condition, and to work in harmony with the white man in upbuilding the Com-
